

WARRINGTON LIT AND PHIL DATA PROTECTION POLICY

Warrington Literary and Philosophy Society needs to collect and use certain types of information about members and guests in order to publicise its activities.

Control of data

The Society has reviewed its procedures for collection, storage and use of information in order to ensure compliance with the General Data Protection Regulations which come into force on 25 May 2018. The Council of the Society has discussed the changes needed to comply with GDPR.

David Barlow, IT Secretary of the Society is the processor of all information collected. He can be contacted on warlitphil@aol.co.uk

What information is collected

The only information collected from members is their names and email address. The information is stored on an email contact list on the AOL mail account of the society on the personal computer of David Barlow.

What is the information used for

At the beginning of each meeting, new members and guests are invited to give their email addresses if they wish to receive email alerts from the Society. The email alerts give details of the programme and individual meetings. Information is also sent to members about a small number of additional activities run by other organisations in the area. Email alerts are sent out with addresses in Blind Copy formats to avoid general disclosure of the addresses.

No email addresses have been or will be given to any other organisation.

Your right to remove your data from our list

At any time you have the right to have your data removed from our lists. Email me on warlitphil@aol.co.uk if you no longer want us to store your information.

Dave Barlow

IT Secretary, Warrington Literary and Philosophical Society